

A Holy Week Letter from Pastor Scott

Earlier this year the Confirmation Class was learning about the “Second Person” of the Trinity, Jesus Christ. In talking about the person and work of Jesus, I had the class explore seven Gospel passages to remind them, or introduce them, to a variety of Jesus’ teachings. The central questions I was hoping the Confirmation Class would think about were: “Who is this Jesus?” and “What does Jesus expect us to do?”

When it came time to putting some reflections together for Holy Week I thought about these texts. Each one is open to a variety of ways we can reflect upon Jesus’ ministry and calling to discipleship in preparation for Easter. Who is Jesus? What does he expect us to do? Two important questions for all of us to answer as we consider our present time and vision for the future.

I hope you find these scripture reflections helpful as we journey through Holy Week. Perhaps it will help to know that even while we are physically apart from one another during this ongoing pandemic, we are spiritually walking together on the same path—step by step; day by day. Let’s all hope and pray that we are able to worship together, in person, again very soon.

Courage and Peace during this Holy Week,
Pastor Scott
